Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Investment performance

In accordance with the rules of the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA), investment performance information will be shown here once the Fund has a full 12-month period of performance history.

Monthly investment commentary: July

The FCA's rules restrict the description of investment performance in the first twelve months of a fund's life. The market backdrop in July, the first month in the Fund's planned seven year life, was favourable. UK equities responded well to the election of a new government and out-performed their global peers. The large-cap dominated FTSE All-Share rose by 3.1%, while the investment universe of small companies, represented by the DNSCI (XIC), was up by 7.7%. The Fund participated in this rally, though its performance was affected by launch costs, which were as described in the Prospectus and were reduced by a contribution from Aberforth Partners.

Turning to the holdings, two stocks in the contracting space generated strong total returns. One of these was Keller, the groundworks engineer, which continued what has been a strong run of year-to-date performance in anticipation of its half year results. Galliford Try, the general contractor, released an update that pointed to its performance for the full year reaching the top end of expectations and presented a positive trading outlook. Elsewhere, the share price of Card Factory rose sharply after regulatory announcement revealed sizable turnover on the shareholder register.

The Fund's laggards included Robert Walters, the recruiter. A trading update detailed the difficult conditions the sector continues to face and pushed out the expectations for any material improvement in trading. Dowlais, the auto parts supplier, struggled amid deteriorating sentiment towards the auto industry, as a more fragile global economy affects demand and fears of tariffs build. Centaur Media, the B2B publisher, released a weak set of results for the first half of its year, which led to earnings downgrades for the full year.

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 30 June 2031. Hurdle rates & redemption yields

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except DNSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the DNSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the DNSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.

Aberforth Partners LLP does not provide retail investors with investment advice.
