Monthly investment commentary: January

The UK stock market fell in January and trailed the gains made by other major international indices. The disinflation trend continues, but CPI releases in the month were not as low as hoped. As a result, expectations for the first round of rate cuts from the Federal Reserve and Bank of England have been pushed further into the future. Within the UK, large caps performed slightly better than small caps and the growth style out-stripped value. The Fund was down by 2.0%, in-line with the 2.0% decline of the benchmark DNSCI (XIC) and behind the FTSE All-Share's 1.3% fall.

The leading positive contributor to performance was Wincanton, the logistics provider. It was subject to a recommended cash offer from a subsidiary of CMA CGM, the French shipping and logistics operator. CMC Markets, the financial derivatives dealer, performed strongly following the announcement of improved quarterly trading, led by an increased contribution from its B2B and institutional business. Foxtons Group, the estate agent, was another good performer as it issued a positive trading update, which indicated 2023's earnings would come in ahead of prior expectations.

Losers in the month included Close Brothers, the banking and asset management business. The share price fell after the Financial Ombudsman decided against motor finance companies, which prompted a review by the FCA. Compensation or redress could affect the bank's earnings and capital base. Shares in Reach, the publisher, fell but there was no company specific news in the month. In the background, concerns remain about a sustained slowdown in advertising spending, while changes to Google's approach to third party cookies complicate how advertisers reached their intended audience.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except DNSSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the DNSSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the DNSSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the main market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.
