Objective

The Fund's objective is to achieve a total return greater than that of the NSCI (XIC) over the long term by investing in a diversified portfolio of small UK quoted companies.

Investment style: Value

Aberforth are value investors who buy shares in companies that they calculate to be selling below their intrinsic value. This is determined through detailed financial and industrial analysis, combined with a valuation approach that focuses on both stockmarket and corporate worth.

Monthly investment commentary: July

Equities enjoyed another strong month in July, responding to benign inflation data in the US. The 3.0% year-on-year increase in the CPI raised hopes that interest rates are approaching their peak. In the UK, inflationary pressures remain more persistent, but there were indications in the CPI release that tighter monetary policy is having its desired effect. The NSCI (XIC) returned 4.2% and out-performed the FTSE All-Share's 2.6% rise. The Fund's 2.6% return was influenced more by the fortunes of individual stocks than by style and size factors.

Turning, then, to stocks, SIG (building products distribution) was the largest negative contributor in the month. The group warned of a deterioration in demand in its markets, notably Germany and France. Elsewhere, Redde Northgate (van rental) reported strong results but succumbed to profit taking, reversing some of the previous month's strong performance. Among the non holdings, Babcock International was detrimental to relative performance: the maritime and defence contractor issued well-received results and its share price rose by 32% through July.

Among the winners, Reach (newspaper publishing) was the biggest positive contributor. Its interim results were taken well by the market, as price increases offset lower volumes to allow 2% growth in circulation revenue. Margins also benefited from lower print costs and from other cost savings initiatives. Elsewhere, the share price of Enquest (oil & gas) rose with the oil price, which was up by more than $10 per barrel over the month.

Gearing

The Fund has a bank debt facility of £130m available for use as gearing by the Manager at any time. The net gearing/(liquidity) figure shown in the Key Fund information section indicates the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Continuation vote & share buy-backs

The continuation of the Fund is voted on by shareholders at every 3rd AGM. The next vote will occur at the AGM in March 2026.

The Fund operates a share buy-back policy. A list of the buy-back transactions during the last 5 years is available at www.aberforth.co.uk.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the main market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.
