Monthly investment commentary: June

Stockmarkets retained their fizz of April and May, buoyed by survey data pointing to a rebound in economic activity. The FTSE All-Share generated a total return of 1.5% and the NSCI (XIC) returned 1.2%. Reflecting the continuing risk presented by Covid-19, growth stocks have so far led the market rebound. However, after a tricky start to the year, style data showed a tentative rotation to value towards the end of May, which continued into June. Influenced also by fortunes of individual stocks, the Fund's return was -1.0%.

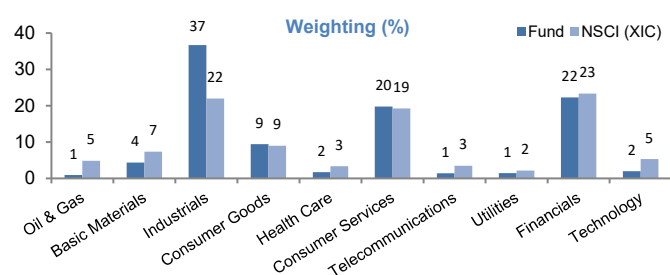

Performance was hindered by stocks that had performed well in the previous month and succumbed to profit taking: this affected PayPoint, which was the biggest negative contributor to performance, Halfords, Anglo Pacific and Redde Northgate. Elsewhere, subprime lender Amigo was weak in the wake of an increase to its provision for complaints and amidst boardroom infighting. More positively, CMC Markets reported strong results that were boosted by heightened volatility and trading activity. Meanwhile, the share price of Morgan Advanced Materials responded well to a trading update.

The sharp falls in share prices and valuations might elicit opportunistic interest in UK smaller companies from private equity and others. In this regard, distributor SIG's equity issue is pertinent: it is part funded by private equity taking a c.29% stake in the company. This unusual move reflects the particularly attractive valuations on offer among small caps. Similar deals have been undertaken in the US, but it remains to be seen whether there is lasting appeal in the UK. More generally, the equity issues from companies badly affected by the Covid-19 recession continue. By the end of June, 28 companies in the NSCI (XIC) had raised additional equity. The Fund participated in three of these.

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024. The net gearing figure shown in the Key Fund information section is the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Hurdle rates & redemption yields

The Fund's latest hurdle rates and redemption yields are available from the AIC website at www.theaic.co.uk; select Statistics, then ZDP Analytics.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

COVID-19 virus – in the context of market price risk, please note the exceptional circumstances arising from the COVID-19 pandemic and the responses to it. These have profoundly affected macro-economic activity, the operations of companies around the world and their stockmarket valuations. The universe of UK small quoted companies market invested in by the Fund, has seen a significant fall in its aggregate valuation due to the uncertainties arising from the spread of this virus. Aberforth Partners LLP and the Directors of Aberforth Split Level Income Trust plc are closely monitoring market developments as the impact of the pandemic progresses.

Capital may be at risk as the value of investments may go down as well as up and is not guaranteed; therefore investors may not get back the amount originally invested. Past performance is not a guide to future performance, nor a reliable indicator of future results or performance.

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.
