Monthly investment commentary: November

November saw a continuation of October's positive momentum. Spurred by lower than expected US inflation data, risk assets globally staged a broad recovery, moving inversely to falling treasury yields, the weaker US dollar and a nearly $10 decline in the oil price. The Fund's gain of 10.1% compared favourably with the NSCI (XIC)'s rise of 7.5%. The FTSE All-Share, dominated by large companies, rose by 7.1%.

The major contributor to the Fund's performance was Devro, the manufacturer of collagen-based food casings. The company received a bid from a German-owned peer, Saria, at an acceptable valuation. Other notable winners included Morgan Advanced Materials. This manufacturer of ceramic and carbon products, which is one of the Fund's largest positions, responded well to a good trading update that pointed to double digit sales growth in 2022. The share price of Centamin, the gold miner whose main asset is in Egypt, reacted positively to news of an expansion of their mine and to the higher gold price.

In a strong month for equities, there were few significant detractors from the Fund's performance. Most prominently, Ecora Resources (mining royalties) saw further share price weakness following its trading update at the end of October. PayPoint (payment services) responded with some scepticism to the announcement of the acquisition of Appreciate Group, while Videndum (equipment and services for photography and film making) issued an acceptable if lacklustre trading update in the month.

Gearing

The Fund's Ord shares are geared by the capital entitlement of the ZDP shares which will rise continuously until the planned winding up date of 1 July 2024. The net gearing figure shown in the Key Fund information section is the percentage by which the total value of investments exceeds the total net assets.

Hurdle rates & redemption yields

The Fund's latest hurdle rates and redemption yields are available from the ZDP Analytics section of the AIC website at www.theaic.co.uk.

Data sources & calculations

All data supplied by Aberforth, except NSCI (XIC) data (from Numis/Paul Marsh and Elroy Dimson – London Business School) and FTSE data (from FTSE International Limited).

Performance returns are total returns after all expenses and assume reinvestment of dividends. Yield is based on the Fund's trailing 12 months' dividends (excluding Specials). Active share is a measure of how the Fund's portfolio differs from the NSCI (XIC). Small companies are represented by the NSCI (XIC). Large companies are represented by the FTAS.

Risk warnings

Investments in shares of smaller companies are generally considered to carry a higher degree of risk as the market for their shares may be less liquid than that for shares of larger companies, making shares of smaller companies more difficult to buy and sell.

The performance of shares of smaller companies may be more volatile than the shares of larger companies over short time periods; therefore investors should regard such investments as long term.

There can be no guarantee that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved or provide the dividends and returns sought by the Fund.

An investment in the Fund is only suitable for investors who are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of such an investment and who have sufficient resources to be able to bear any losses which may arise from such an investment (which may be equal to the whole amount invested). Such an investment should be regarded as long term in nature and complementary to existing investments in a range of other financial assets and should not form a major part of an investment portfolio.

An investment trust is a public limited company, the shares of which are traded on the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange. Accordingly, the ability of shareholders to sell their shares will be dependent on the market price of the shares. The shares may trade at a discount or premium to their net asset value.

Investment trusts may borrow money in order to make further investments. This is known as gearing. The effect of gearing can enhance returns to shareholders in rising markets but will have the opposite effect on returns in falling markets.

The Fund's Ordinary shares (Ords) are geared by the Zero Dividend Preference shares (ZDPs) and rank for repayment of capital after the ZDPs and any creditors of the Fund. A positive net asset value for the Ords will be dependent upon the Fund's assets being sufficient to meet the prior capital entitlements of the holders of the ZDPs. The Ords should therefore be regarded as carrying above average risk. The ZDPs are not a protected or guaranteed investment. In particular, should the Fund be wound up prior to its planned winding up date, holders of ZDPs would only receive their accrued capital entitlement to the date of winding up - which would be less than the final anticipated capital entitlement of the ZDPs.
